

Goals

We plan to have both the HERE and Google Places APIs working correctly and efficiently in order to manage any information regarding the device's location. In addition to this, we intend to create and design the database to be used for the backend, and to link this to the app as well. We hope to use either an API or some type of console to work with the Database. As far as app functionality and design are concerned, we have decided to focus on providing so-called "moods" to users with profiles on the app, as well as a moods design page, more results provided to users in the form of reviews, pictures, etc., and a profile page for each user, among other things.
